
Title: Research Diary

Author: Moriens Garthond

Day 24_ I am forced to believe that many ages ago, Zog, the famous scholar who managed to uncover the wispish language, has discovered one way to channel wisps' power into some sort of destructive spell. After his shameful failing, that led the world to destruction for several centuries, this amusing race, the wisps, has returned to this land.

What they are and the nature of their power is unknown.

Although, they hold amazing skills and magic abilities to defeat the strongest opponent.

I should also believe, that Lord Blackthorne, the false friend of Lord British, has somehow recovered Zog's old studies and researches concerning wisps.

Just imagine what one, disgraced by the insane seek of power, could do with the wispish destructive force in hands ?

Conspiracy ? End of Britannia ? Tragedy to Lord British ?

Or just a small game of conflicts, like the usual afternoon chess ?

Who knows ?

Day 25_

I raised an interesting theory tonight. What if Winslow is working for Blackthorne's research ?

I'm sure they're masterpieces of a great event, something that is far beyond my imagination.

Day 26_

Something Stupid came to mind tonight....

Is Crawworth really to be trusted ? I would think that at least one of his allies, sent to investigate the new lands is a traitor. If the Cabal opened on purpose the entrance to the new lands, I suppose someone of their organization is already there. Would this person be one of British's party ?

Day 28_ Many events happened tonight. I finally came to learn that Duquelle is dead, as I had foreseen. A few apostles of the Avatar have mistaken me for one of the Followers. This is getting dangerous.
